

A PLACE FOR JAZZ

June 2010

Editor: Tim Coakley

WEBSITE: HTTP://WWW.APLACEFORJAZZ.ORG—UPDATED DAILY

Membership Benefits Update

by Anita Haugen

We're getting ready for our exciting new 2010 concert season and want to announce changes in our enrollment dates, ticket flexibility and membership benefits.

- 1) In order to align membership enrollment with each fall music season, the APFJ Membership Committee has recommended that all memberships will begin and all dues will be expected by September 1 of that season. This will streamline our membership records and better inform us of our financial status. Also, it will help you, our members; to more easily remember when to renew your membership each year.
- 2) Any dues collected after the 2009 season and prior to September 1, 2010, will apply to the current season. Monies collected during the upcoming season and after September 1, 2010 will carry over to the following season.
- 3) All concert tickets will become flexible, all-purpose tickets which will allow members to use their tickets for any concert/s rather than having tickets specific to each concert. Even though Price Chopper has already printed "concert-specific" tickets for this season,

any ticket can be used for any concert.

Next season, all tickets will look the same.

- 4) Membership levels have been changed and benefits have been enhanced. We hope this is only the beginning of why you would want to become a member of APFJ!

Beginning now, the six levels of membership will be designated by music notes ~ one note for Level 1, two for Level 2, etc. (See form, Page 7.)

What you get

According to the level of their donation, members will receive:

- a) a tax deduction for donations in excess of ticket value (One series ticket is valued at $60) as we are a 510(c)(3) organization.
- b) free tickets for donations of over $100 as before.
- c) having their names listed in programs, on our website and on an entry "Thank You" poster.
- d) an opportunity for a Meet & Greet at the concert of your choice and autographed CD from that performer for donations of $500 and above.

e) good vibes from knowing they are a part of an organization that brings great music to our community at an affordable price and funds community education programs and scholarships.

Dale Foster (Foster Goodale)

Foster C. Goodale, 92, known to many of us as Dale Foster, died April 11 after a long illness. Dale was a drummer and vocalist for many years, and a loyal supporter of A Place for Jazz. He was stepfather to Bill Delaney and father-in-law to Peg Delaney.

He was born in Yorkville, near Utica, and graduated from Utica Free Academy with a major in machine design. He began a career in music, playing drums and singing with regional bands in the 1940s.

During the war, he continued learning the music business while stationed as a radio technician /operator with the Army Air Corps in Sarasota Fla. In 1950, he moved to Troy and established the Dale Foster Quartets and Trios, touring throughout the east, mid-west and south and especially near Rehoboth Beach, Del. The original DFQ included Vito Mamone on accordion, Stan Marsden on vibes, Sid Norman on Bass, and Dale on drums.

An Active Career

The quartet was much in demand throughout the Capital Region during the 1960s, and they also played during the summers in Rehoboth Beach, Lewes Beach MD and at Dover Air Force Base. He and his wife, Dee, ran a café on the boardwalk in Rehoboth Beach during the summers of '61 through '63.

He played and sang with many local musicians: Joni Balcom, Buddy Bedell, Frankie Brown, Ed Marks, Ray Lamere, Neil Brown, Al Haugen, Tom Cheles, Paul Mastriani and Peg and Bill Delaney.

Some Friends Remember

Stan Marsden: I first met Dale whilst playing "Dukes" lounge on Monument Square in Troy. Rudy Cicotti was the owner. This was in 1956. I was with a blind pianist from Philly, Billy Lane. We had been joined by my Canadian compatriot from Hamilton, Ontario: Rick Wilkins. Rick's presence brought all local "cats & catesses" in, including Nick Brignola. Nick & Rick were featured at a big band session at the "Cat and the Fiddle," in Troy's "outback." It was Dale who invited me to get in touch if I was ever looking for work.

A few months later I was. I called him from York, Pa. to say that Billy Lane was becoming "non itinerant" at the request of his (also blind) wife. Dale drove down to Philly and picked me up. On the way back we stopped off in N.Y.C. to pick up Vito Mamone. So we all wound up at "Dukes" and with Sid Norman -- The Dale Foster Quartet was formed.

Vito Mamone: What can I say, There is so much that can be said about Dale Foster. I was in his Quartet when I was I my mid - to early twenties. It was a great experience. Later I formed the Vito Mamone Trio and he always had words of encouragement for me. We remained good friends until his death.

More friends

Skip Parsons: I always liked Dale and knew him fairly well. We both did the night club circuit back in the 60's. However, I only played with him on a couple of sessions, but liked him and his drumming. He was a part of those late-night diner/breakfast gatherings back then. A lot of the time it was after an all-night "blow" in some joint. That after-the-gig business was such a great part of the scene. And ... he was part of us.

Tim Coakley: I met Dale when he was playing in downtown Albany with Ed Marks and Buddy Bedell. Our mutual Utica roots gave us a lot to talk about. He never failed to offer me a chance to sit in on drums, and had encouraging words about my playing.

Last Years

In 1989, the Goodales retired to Hudson, Fla. until they returned to the Northeast in March '05. While in Florida, Dale wrote an engaging memoir of life in up-state NY between both world wars; and in late '06 he composed a sweet song for Dee, "I'll Always Remember This Christmas."

And we will always remember Dale, a true friend of music.

THE GIG

By Don Egrý

He looked 'round the room so dark
and so still,

and at the piano soon to bend to his will.

In an hour or so he'd start to play for the love of the music, not just for the pay.

He sat there with coffee and gazed
at the crowd

as they straggled in, talking too loud.

The drummer and bassist were up on the stand

tuning and tapping—the crowd
gave them a hand.

He sat down at the keyboard and looked up at the crowd.

"We're gonna play jazz now, requests are allowed.

He started to play as he called out
a tune

from the American song Book—its title Blue Moon.

He played very easy, he started out
slow,

and bass and drums became part of the flow.

The Steinway or Baldwin, whatever
its name,

sang out with emotion that was hard to explain.

He played it quite straight for a chorus or two—

the people could tell that he knew what to do.

Then came the magic. His fingers just flew

and Blue Moon was changed into something quite new.

The way they were playing, it was easy to tell

his fellow musicians were turned on
as well.

The sensitive souls in the audience
that night

could sense something special to their great delight.

The rest of the crowd, in their usual
way,

kept drinking and talking with nothing to say.

But the men on the stand tran-
scended all sound,

their breathtaking notes cascaded
all around.

Soon even people who don't seem to care

began to get quiet, to listen and stare

at the small group of players up on the stand.

Their wondrous performance was particularly grand.

The song finally ended to tumultuous applause.

Then they started another with barely a pause.

They played one, then another,
each better than before.

Then it was over. Folks started for the door.

He knew he'd performed well and
so had the others.

After an evening like this they felt
close, like brothers.

They certainly played well, the people concurred

saying "This is the best jazz group
we've ever heard.

They packed up their gear and were ready to go.

The bartender stopped them, "See the manager, Joe."

They knew what was up, been around lots of places,

were no longer surprised by the owners' sad faces.

"You guys are good, that goes without saying,

but business is slow and I'm no longer paying

for music I don't need—got to cut back somewhere.

I'll just play CDs, the people won't care."

So the very best jazz group people
ever heard

had no place to play. That's truly absurd.

But in a short time he will play
again.

He'll start with Blue Moon or Where or When.

He hopes he'll play with drummer
and bass,

but play he will in any case.

The pay is short, the hours are late,
but that, my friends, is the musician's fate.

Fourth Annual 2010 HUDSON JAZZ WORKSHOP

Thursday, August 12 - Sunday, August 15
Hudson, NY

Pianist Armen Donelian and saxophonist Marc Mommaas present the fourth annual Hudson Jazz Workshop, an inspiring and intimate jazz intensive. This year's guest is Jim McNeely, composer-in-residence of the Vanguard Jazz Orchestra.

Improvisation, composition, duo and ensemble playing, technique, practice routines and artist life issues are some of the topics to be covered. Meals and housing included. Enrollment is limited to allow for an in-depth learning experience. Some places are still available. We welcome all musicians aspiring to advanced level work.

The Workshop includes sessions with Armen Donelian and Marc Mommaas on Thursday evening and full days on Friday and Saturday. Jim McNeely arrives on Sunday for a special morning session and a concluding afternoon student/faculty concert for the public at the historic Hudson Opera House.
